EGYPTIAN PINANCES.

The highly astisfactory state of the finances of the Egyptian Government is made manifest in the latest supplement to the "Official Journal," which contains the accounts for Jounn, with tables showing the revenue and expenditure of the country during the first six mouths of 1905. The receipts for this period amount to LR 6,891,048, against LR 5,979.84 last year, an improvement of LR 418,900, for which the increase in the revenues of the Railway Administration, a good index of the Railway Administration, a good index of the Commercial property of the country, is largely responsible. Tobacco and Gustoms duties show a gratifying increase, and the Poet Office will to all appearance end the year with a very substantial balance. The expenditure for the first six months of 1905 shows an increase of LR 441,585 on the figures for the same period in 1904. The Railway Administration shows the larger substantial balance. The expenditure for the first six months of 1905 shows an increase of LR 441,585 on the figures for the same period in 1904. The Railway Administration shows the larger increase, which is of course explained by the large purphase of new material that have been and are being made, purchases which will ad the Batta Railways to become one of the chief course of Egypt's swanns,

POST OFFICE NOTICE.—The continual increase in the demand for house-to-house delivery in Cairo and Alexandria renders it absolutely necessary that all persons in these towns desirons of such delivery aball have the number of the house and name of the street in which they live indicated on their correspondence. Should by any chapse a street be unnamed, then the quarter of the town in which its situated must be indicated, Attention to these instructions is tapperative to avoid delay and errors in the delivery of correspondence.

BRITISH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—We would BRITISE CHAMMS OF COMERGE—We would draw the attention of manufacturers and mer-chants to the work of the British Chamber of Commerce of Regrpt, which was formed in 1896 with the sole object of assisting British trade in this country. The services of the Chamber are always at the disposal of any member desiring information on trade matters generally, including the question of appointing suitable agents. As no fee is charged for such advice, it it is obviously in the interests of all British traders here to become members, seposially when it is remembered that the annual subit is obviously in the interests of all British traders here to become members, especially when it is remembered that the annual sub-cription is meetly the nominal one of £1. The latter payment also includes a copy of the monthly Journal issued by the Chamber. Home equiners can obtain further particulars from our London office, §6, New Broad-street, which acts as agents to the Chamber.

WINE IMPORTS.

WINE IMPORTS.

Port Said only plays a small part in the import trade in wines. The prices usual at Port Said are as follows for cases 12 bottles each f.o.b. Port Said: light sherry 15 frs, Manganilla 20 frs, Amontillado 22 frs, Manganilla 20 frs, Amontillado 22 frs, Mangar 11 frs. The red table wines imported from France sarrive as a role in harrels containing from 200 to 220 litres, with an average price of 30 frs. the hectolitre franco Marsellies. The white and red vines of Palestine are getting more and more into favor and are delivered at 32 continues the litre. The excellent wines produced by Jevish Colony of Bishon-1e-5(20 once successfully competing—despite their higher price—the price of the price of th 30 fm. fa.b. Port Said, Greek wines are sold by the kilo at from 16 to 18 centifyes per kilo. Were the freight lower the chesper Austrian table wines would be able to compete with a good chance of success, but as freight charges from Marsellies to Port Said only amount to 10 fcs, per onlie metrs, while those on the Austria Lloyd boats are double as high, it is not likely that they can be profitably imported. Hungarian wines, however, are likely to gain some ground in A equadria and Gaira.

NOTES FROM THE SUDAN.

RAINS AND CROPS.

( FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT ).

Though heavy rains have fallon early 123.

Though heavy rains have fallon early this year in the Southern Sudan, the Nile has rains very slowly compared with last season. The cultivators have already begun sowing (with out ploughing, as they do not know how to do this) their fields of mains, and hope to have a very good crop. They have greatly suffered during the past four years owing to the searcity of rain.

STARVING NATIVES.

STARVING NATIVES.

The ardeb of dura is worth at present P.T. 190, and it will probably within three months fall to P.T. 90. This fall in price will prove a great boon to the already half-starved population of some parts of the interior of the Sudan, as I understand that a great many people have been eating the roots of the trees in the forests.

SALES OF LAND.

The searcity of rain has also lad numerous landowners to dispose of their lands at a very low price to the Greek merchants settling in the larger towns. The Government, realizing the great harm which the peasants were conting to their own future welfare, have issued a proclamation to the effect that no land is to be sold without the special approval of the governors of the provinces concerned.

THE WILY GREEK.

THE WILLY GREEK.

It has come to my knowledge that the factor which led these marchants to acquire large areas of land is the prospect of the proposed canal to be built next year through the Gherirah, i.e., the land lying between the Blue and White Nilss. The Government was to be congratulated on having taken such as wise boars, as I feel sure that had they have not all the land would have been left through the hands of strangers, and the natives would have been left through any through the land would have been left through through the land would have been left through the land would have been l

VISITATION OF LOCUSTS. Myriads of locusts have passed over Che-girsh on their way South, but they are causing little or no anxiety, as no crop is grown at the present time of the year, and their eggs, when deposited, will be destroyed by the rains.

A. S. C. GYMKHANA.

Saturday's Gymkhana attracted but a small number of people to the A. S. C. grounds, and the enclosure bore almost a deserted appear-ance. This is not to be wondered at when we consider how many are absent in Europa, but still we think that the Gymkhana on the whole is not popular. Beyond those who took an active part in the programse on Saturday, everyone seemed more or less bored, and this is sometimes the ease at these meetings. With these introductory remarks we shall pass on to the events.

WOMEN AND LYING.

It is amazing that anyone should be found It is among that anyone should be found odobt the fact that women lie more contantly, laboriously, and sleverly than men, and in larger proportion. The wonder is that now woman peaks the troth. There are only you woman speaks the troth. There are only man. One is to be born so. The other way is tile long and lond, and as well as ever you

Take oppearance as the very first instance. The man goes about in his own outlines, and the shape of his head is irretiresby what his ablace willed; it if his hair is straight; it says so. A woman ac creature of broad and gradual will be shaped of the fashionable corset, and the shape of the fashionable corset, and the shape of the fashionable or the shape of the shape shape shape is the shape kants; ahe curls it to make the "now row the novalists now adore out of the bare and lofty forekeed that they one grovelled to. In short, she finds out just what she would look like if her appearance told the truth—and hastily ensures, at considerable expense, that is shall "stop that?" When she is thoroughly and irredeemably plain, with no magnetism to help her to lie about it, she will self the truth in her person. The grey and eastly hair will strain cheerfully back from the knobby forehead, the untrammelled figure will assert itself in riotus comfort, the serviceable feet will pound untorroured in the serviceable feet will pound untorroured in the serviceable boots. She will have leisure to turn her mind from lies and open it to truth and kindness. Men will secknowledge her to be the salt of the earth—and turn to it sugar with all the keener rest. They will recommend har warmly, cordially, as the potential mother of a friend's offgring. For the mother of their own they will turn to the list.

I a man say these words, and he is also with the services of the services are the services as we then or show that they are oman say them, or show that they are her heart, and it is ten chances to one will turn from her to the that the man will turn from her to the weam who has all the pretty evanive tricks that are the graceful children of a lie. The lie leads to any amount of delicate feacing and the enjoyment of much flattering of sentiment and suspense. It would be a pity to abolish it. But it is a lie. It has another name, which is "proper self-respect." (The appearance business has another name too. It is called, "making the most of your-self.")

She was to roose his jealousy if she could. She was to "put him of!" with this lie and "bring him on" with another. The girl listened. And when the time came, she got up and put her hands in his, and said gravely and softly. "With all my heart." That answered, for the man was worth what she felt for them. Môet of his kind would be the same if they were left alone. They are trained to love the lie, and follow it in women, and to despise it among themselves. After feelings, take views. Many a woman has a man's outlook on life if she lets the average man see that she has it, especially (again) where sex matters are concerned, she will almost certainly alienate his love by destroying her "mystery" (another deli-There was once a girl frankly and devot-

She may gain his friendship and companionship, but she will have to take her chance and "rough it" amongst his other friends. "I don't put myself out for Bortha," said as man the other day; "there's no nonesses about her." And he let her open the heavy gate and push her bicycle through.

After views, take tastes. The constant society of children, for instance, may bore and exasperate a woman. It is as much as her life is worth to say of Her husband, qualify their paront, runs no risk of being avoided as unhatral if he prefers to travel in a different in a different

SWEET LAVENDER.

SWERT LAVENDER.

When Eppie in "Silies Marner" was pleading for a little garden outside the wavever's oottage, she mentions some of the flowers she would like "TII have a bit o' researing, and berganout and thyme, because they are so sweet smelling, but there's no learneds only in the genthelolies gardens, I think." Her lover instantly harden to assure be that he will prouch not some mone one one that he will prouch the form of the same that he will prouch the same mone enough in cottage gardens, I was not a familiar an object at the time that George Elictworks. It groy green foliage, Spensar's "Lavender still groy," even now stand out with an alien effect among the usual grass-groun leaves of our garden plants. The harty foliage of a plant generally denotes that it original home in climas where the heat is greater than in England, and where plants find it an advantage to have a thick garment of hairs so as to reduce transpiration to a minimum. ### KIRIN AND THE SUNGARI.

Two stupendous armies, the largest ever gathered for battle since the days of Tamerlane, are ensamped in one of the loveliest lands on early. For the Province of Kirni si incomparably beautiful, capecially along the Sungari Valley, and its Long White Mountain and its Dragon King's Pool are amongst the wonders of the Far East. In summer the province is one grand garden. In winter over the head roads and form rivers the ratellies. province is one grand garden. In winder over the hard roads and frozan rivers the traffic is immonse, for this section of Manchuria con-tains the highway between the northern province of Hei-lung-chiang and Peng-tien in the south. Should peace not be apeculiy ar-ranged, in a few weeks Kiri will be a terrible

Acediana.

This area of conflict defies description so far as superlative sconic beauty is concerned. In the valleys the lillies of many species grow in ricotos profusion, the iris blooms in every creek, and conucless autuann crocuses spangle every stretch of sward. The woods are carpeted with the convolvalues and the bluebell. Poppies blaze amongst the dark green millet. Where the forests are thick on the lower slopes of the hills orchids light up the gloom. Ataleas baring masses of small yellow flowers, columbines of every shade of manuve or buff, and great clumps of deep blue gentian variegate the mossy grass of the meadows of this vertable Faradiso of Externe Asia. All travellers agree that Kirin is the garden of Manchuria. Its area of over 90,000 square miles is everywhere attractive with unique festures of lovaliness. The pride and the glory of Kirin is the grant viver which is the noblest tributary of the mighty Amur. The Sangari is Mancharia's grandest stream. It rises in a romantic spot, in the bosom of the Ever-White Mountain (Chang pai-shan), that sacred range which construes the property of the mighty Amur. The Sangari is Mancharia's grandest stream. apt, at this time of the year, when, flooded by swollen rivulets from the mountains, to overflow its banks, and the western portion of the city is then often swamped for days. All the streets within the old walla (built in the Middle Ages round the city, partly of mad, partly of the roughest manoury) are then intolerably filthy. The pathway of the street along the riverside is on, old planks built out on piles. But this culty resisted the visitor of the point of the resistance of the point of t alloration into a time patterns of the street along the riverside is on, old planks built out on piles. But this only reminds the visitor of the famous Board Walk at Atlantic City, by way of deplorable contrast. Along a great section of this river front are piles of collins, in which an enormous business is done.

RUSSIAN JEWS AND REVOLUTION

It might be supposed that the Russian Jawa, who have been so terribly oppressed by the bursanersey, would have entered heart and soil into the revolutionary movement in Ranais. But this is not the case. The Jeriah working classes have joined with their fallows to the sections of a principle of the section Rossis. But this is not the case. The Jewish working classes have joined with their follows in the resistance to authority, but they have been checked by the Jews of the bourgeoisis, who are influenced more by a dread of a classes in the second more by a first of the thirty-nine nationalities in Russia they one fifth in numerical order, and they have suffered worse oppression than any of them. They have always considered themselves as foreigness in the country, and as foreigners who are looked upon with suspicion. Thay have, therefore, always been anxious not to do anything which could irritate the authorities, and have paid more beed to Jewish interests than to the general good of the Kupira. Nationalism on the part of the Jews has never considered the authorities feeling as a part of the Jewish interests than the leaders of the race have always preferred to get the best terms possible from the Taar's Government rather than to outer on the dangerous path of revolution. The better class Jews only sak for toleration; and on that account they are opposed to the revolutionary movement; though the proletariat class have been inclined to throw in their lot with the Russian workmen.

THE INCONSIDERATE HAIR.

Sir Oliver Lodge told us the other day that the man of the future will have no teeth and no toes. But apparently he will still have a beard, in spite of generations of tonsorial discouragement; and the medical journals of 2905 will cry, as the "British Medical Journal" Soos will cry, as the "British Medical Journal's of 2000 will cry, as the "British Medical Journal" now does, for "some method of removal at once swifter and easier than the near." The behaviour of the human hair is, indeed, characterised by a singular perversity, it begins to disappear from the crown or the tamples at a period ridiculously in advance of old age; but who ever heard of baldones of the chin 1 A man may alwae daily for fifty years, and at three score and ten the stabible will reappear with the excapenating persistency of the thing that is not wanted. It is not merely that the beart is out of fashion. The tendency of progress, the dictate of hygiens, the sortid necessity of cheeking the calendar, are all against it—so much against it that it is better worth a man's while to spend the minutes every morning, noor in hand, rather than go bearded like the part, or even like the less worth a man's while to spand ten minutes every morning, rator in hand, rather than go bearded like the pard, or even like the storiety has stacked somewhere alarming figures as to the number of years of his life which the average man sponds in shaving, and the aggre-gate number of millenniums thus lost to the human race. But how is nature to be made to understand that the age of patriarchs is gone?

A traveller in a remote part of India—so Mr. Haldane has told us—found the natives offering up a seartifice to an all-powerful god who had just restored to the tribe the land which the Indian Government had taken from it. "What is the name of the god to whom the sacrifice is offered up," inquired the traveller. "We know nothing of him, but this be is a good god, and that his name is the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council," replied the natives.
